

2023 CALL FOR ENTRIES

DOUGLAS DILLON AWARD

for Books of Distinction on the Practice of American Diplomacy

Since 1995, the American Academy of Diplomacy has celebrated distinguished writing about US diplomatic efforts and achievements with its annual Douglas Dillon Award for a Book of Distinction on the Practice of American Diplomacy. Last year the prize went to Winning and Losing the Nuclear Peace: The Rise, Demise and Revival of Arms Control by Michael Krepon, published by Stanford University Press.

The deadline for submission of nominations for this year's award is Friday, August 4, 2023 but early submissions are strongly encouraged. A committee of Academy members will review nominated books and determine the winner, with concurrence by the Academy's Board of Directors. The award for the winning entry this year includes a cash prize of $5,000. The awards are customarily presented at the Academy's Annual Awards Luncheon ceremony in the Benjamin Franklin Room at the US Department of State in the late fall/early winter.

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS

Submitted books must meet the following four criteria to be accepted for consideration: (1) The book is written by an American citizen, (2) the book is published in the U.S., (3) the book is published within the period of August 3, 2022 to August 2, 2023, and (4) the focus of the book fits within the thematic scope described below.

In selecting the winner, the Academy seeks to honor books, and their authors, dealing with the practice of American diplomacy with emphasis on the way US foreign policy is developed and carried out, rather than international theory, studies of broad foreign policy issues, or analyses of intelligence and security operations. Biographies, autobiographies, and personal memoirs that relate to diplomatic practice and process are welcome. Both official diplomatic relations between governments and non-official "Track Two" and other activities that supplement government-to-government diplomacy fall within the scope of this competition. We are particularly interested in books that focus on the opportunities diplomacy offers as well as its limitations.

SUBMISSION INSTRUCTIONS

Step 1: Mail Hard Copies (Required)

To submit a title for consideration, publishers should mail six (6) published copies of the nominated book to the following address:

American Academy of Diplomacy
Attn: Maria Reissaus
1200 18th Street, NW Suite 902
Washington, D.C. 20036
Telephone: 202-331-3721

Step 2: Submit Digital Copy (Highly recommended)

In addition to hard copies, the Academy strongly encourages publishers to submit a digital copy of the nominated title (e.g., PDF, Kindle or e-book formats) to help facilitate the review process by Book Committee members. It can be emailed to:

mreissaus@academyofdiplomacy.org

Digital copies are only shared with Book Committee members. If the publisher's internal policies require a watermark on a digital submission, we ask that you add it in such a way that does not inhibit reading.

ABOUT THE ACADEMY

The American Academy of Diplomacy is a nonprofit organization whose members, while in government service, held senior policy positions related to the conduct of US foreign relations. They are men and women, both career and non-career, who held major diplomatic posts abroad and high-level foreign policy responsibilities in Washington. Among them, as honorary members, are seven of the living former Secretaries of State. The Academy works to encourage the highest standards of qualification for, and performance in, the conduct of American diplomacy, and to enhance public understanding of and appreciation for the contributions of diplomacy to our national interest.
